MOSSBACK TOURNAMENT RECOVERY ZONE

The new MossBack Tournament Recovery Zone provides essential recovery areas near tournament release sites. Each year, numerous fishing tournaments in the U.S. relocate sport fish to centralized weigh-in sites like popular boat ramps or marinas. These tournaments often relocate hundreds to thousands of sport fish per event in these areas, amplifying the need for recovery habitats. The MossBack Tournament Recovery Zone will provide sport fish a place to recover from tournament stress, improve dispersal, and capture high-density forage more efficiently.

Sport fish released in habitat-rich areas recover faster and disperse more effectively than those in barren sites

Without adequate recovery habitats, high-density releases may increase mortality or alter local sport fish populations

Repetitive release site use, prolonged recovery, and slow dispersal all necessitate quality habitat near release sites

Habitat provides abundant food resources post-tournament

The MossBack Tournament Recovery Zone lasts a lifetime

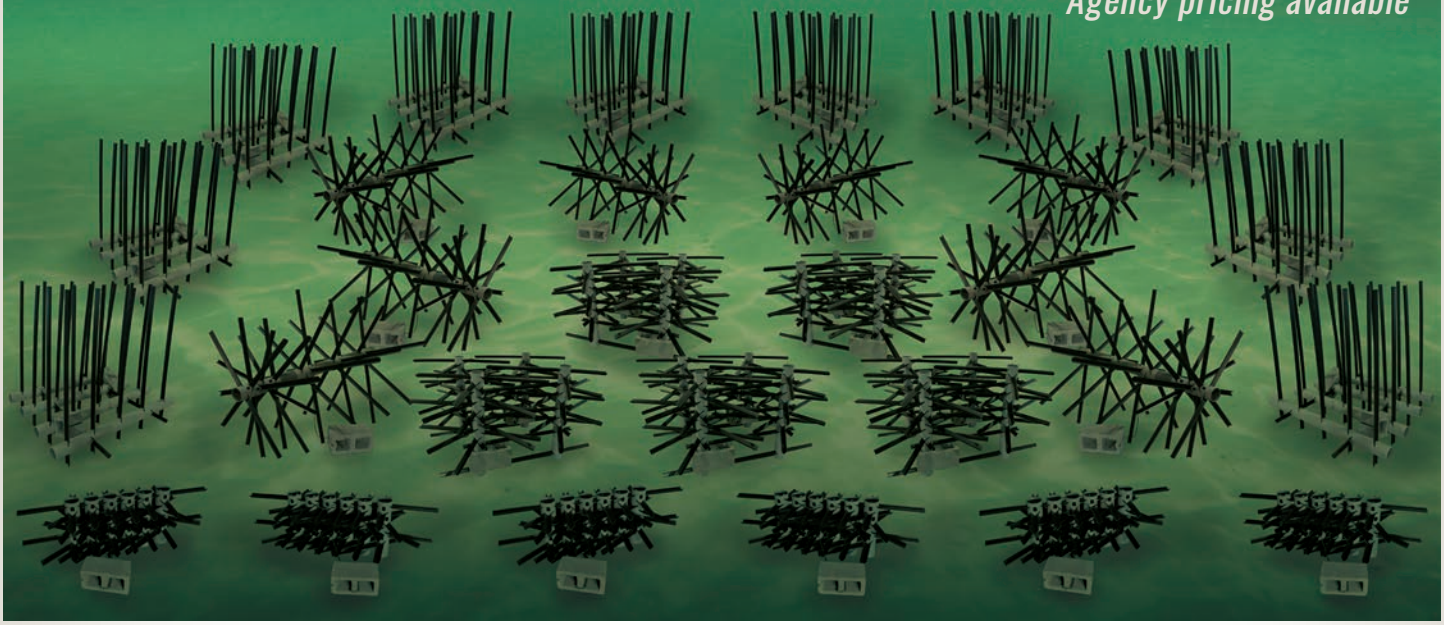

MossBack Tournament Recovery Zone includes: six Fry Fortresses with Cable Kits, five 40" Conservation Cubes, eight John Godwin Signature Crappie Towers with Laydown Cable Kits, and 10 Reed Mats.
